ABSTRACT

This article conducts a more in-depth analysis based on the previous summary, and then puts forward the requirements of news translation, and summarizes the standards and methods of news translation according to the characteristics and requirements of news translation. Not only from the objective point of view of news itself but also from the subjective point of view of translators, news translators are required to continuously improve their own qualities and accomplishments. Translating Uzbek news into Chinese or translating Chinese news into Uzbek is a challenging task. Due to various reasons, translators engaged in this industry are scarce or not professional enough. In order to make up for these inherent shortcomings, we only be able to count on the hard work of the day after tomorrow, a lot of effort is required, not only to master various translation theories and techniques but also to improve one's language level and learn more professional knowledge.
